Long-Term assignments are substitute assignments that are 11 or more consecutive days in a teaching or administrative position for the same employee. This does not include holidays, overlap days or workdays. Long-term substitutes are hired by principals and administrators to fill in for teachers who are out on maternity leave, FMLA or own illness and are often arranged prior to the absence. Long-Term substitutes are paid a higher rate of pay for communicating with parents, preparing lesson plans and entering grades. Long-term substitutes are used only for classroom teachers, and are not for teacher assistants, behavior assistants or secretaries. Long-term substitutes covering for a vacancy have a 90-day expiration date.
